The transaction consists of the transfer of a tract of land comprising 190-699 square feet, at Magnolia, it was owned by John W. Kauffman, the St. Louis millionaire, who since the loss of a son four years ago at Portsmouth, N. H., while hathing, has had a dislike for the seacoast. A short time ago a letter was received from Mr. Kauffman complaining of the amount of the taxes on the property as being too high, and expressing a wish to sell it. A local real estate agent took the matter in hand and organized a syndicate composed of Boston and St. Louis men, and the property was bought for 140,000.

This property is one of the finest on the north shore, and it is said that a big hotel will be erected on the site for the large colony of St. Louis people who each year make their summer home in this region.

Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Reid of Ottawa, Kas., are among the weeks arrivals at the Wentworth, Newcastle N. H. Thursday the St. Louis delegation went down to Revere Beach, one of Boston's rearest and finest public beaches. Many of them had never seen the occan before, and culd not restrain their excitement as they caught their first view of the water, and notwithstanding the tide was out most of them took a plunge from the big $100.00 bathhouse and enjoyed salt-water bathing for the first time in their lives. In the evening the tide was out bright, and as the bathhouse was kept open especially for their pleasure, a large crowd enjoyed the novelty of a moonlight swim.

Live lobsters right out of the water, salmon that had been swimming about in the Penobscot River the day before, and an endless variety of other sea food on exhibition at the big Quincy market all the week, proved an endless source of interest to the Missourians.
